Time

“Then God blessed the seventh day and sanctified it, because in it He rested from all His work which God had created and made.” (Genesis 2:3)

The first thing God deems holy is time. He sets apart the Sabbath day as a time to rest and reflect on all that God has done. The Sabbath goes on to play an integral part in the life of Israel. When Israel is taken into captivity, the observance of the Sabbath becomes a counter-cultural practice. Israel views time differently than the people around them.

This distinct view of time for God’s people continued into the New Testament. Even though others might be going to work, Christians stopped to pray, sing, share the Lord's Supper, and listen to God's word. We do not allow the culture to tell us what is normal or how we should use our time.

To cease from our daily activities in order to honor God is an essential part of the Christian life. Our actions related to time are a profession of our devotion. We devote time to whatever has captured our heart. For many, this is entertainment, sports, family, politics, work, etc., For the Christian, however, our time should first and foremost be devoted to God. Although these other things are meaningful in their own ways, they are ultimately meaningless if we fail to honor God who has given us life, time, and the means to enjoy them.
