Quick & Slow

"But everyone must be quick to hear, slow to speak and slow to anger;"
 (James 1:19)

James is known as a book of common sense - and passages like this illustrate why. It seems so logical and wise, but so difficult to do! We need the wisdom of these words, especially as we emerge from a pandemic and the societal stress that comes with it. And not just in our country; we need it in our congregations as well.

So, how do we do this? To be quick to listen means we first must shift our priorities. So often we are all about ourselves. I'm sure you've heard of the acronym J.O.Y that captures the Biblical ideal simply, yet powerfully: Jesus first, Others next, and Yourself last. When we put others before self we will want to listen and understand.

Slowing our impulse to speak gives our hearts and minds time to process information and emotion. Too often we speak before we stop to process what we have heard. Words are powerful and once they are spoken they cannot be taken back.

If we take time to listen and understand, if we pause and think before we speak, then being slow to anger will come more naturally. Sin happens when we fail to listen, fail to hold our words, and fail to control our temper. This week, strive to be quick to hear, slow to speak, and slow to anger.
